PART A Group Interaction

Below is a memo sent to the managers at a mobile phone company from the CEO:

New hiring policy

Dear department managers,

Please be aware that we are implementing a new hiring policy effective from today. For the past five years we have required all job applicants to complete an intelligence quotient (IQ) exam. IQ tests measure logic, reasoning, memory and problem-solving skills. From now on, however, there will be an additional required test that measures emotional intelligence. All potential employees must complete an emotional quotient (EQ) exam. Emotional intelligence is calculated based upon a person's ability to understand and control their emotions, as well as to interpret and respond to the emotions of others. We expect that staff with high EQ will be able to interact very well with clients and other employees. Only applicants with a high IQ and EQ will be considered for employment. Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Yours truly,

Ms Tong

CEO
